Christmas is perhaps the most eagerly awaited holiday of the entire year. From the first chill of autumn to the first snowflake of winter, people of all ages everywhere in the world begin to anticipate the many ways in which they will exchange the greetings of the season.

For the first time in his varied and successful career, Glen Campbell lends his talents to an entire album of traditional Christmas songs in this special TNN collection. The Grammy-winning artist has chosen 11 songs that are not only his own favorites, but also the time-tested favorites of most people.

"It was a lot if we just got an orange in a sock for Christmas," Glen Campbell says of his childhood days in Arkansas. "But we celebrated Christ and that was really, really the best part of it. I've made other Christmas albums, but I've never done one of all standards, songs that everybody sings at Christmas time. When you really have your heart in the project, it really makes a difference."

Hotshot session guitarist, a short-term Beach Boy, TV and film star, country-pop hitmaker, golfer... these things define Glen Campbell the celebrity. But if anything, they obscure his enormous worth as a singer.

Here, Glen Campbell sings of the meaningful spirit of Christmas as he wraps his sweet, soothing tenor voice around "Silent Night," "God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen," "What Child Is This?," "Joy To The World" and other Yuletide standards in his own inimitable style. The result is a definitive and majestic dedication to the spirit of the season. Rarely has the magic of Christmas been more beautifully expressed.

In the manner he knows best, Glen Campbell musically expresses sincerest wishes for a very Merry Christmas to you.
